When we initially met the homeowners (doctors both) to discuss this project, they told us that they wanted to open up the rear of the house so they could have a view of their wonderful elevated wooded creek property. The house was dark and did not take advantage of the views. Thus from a desire to bring the outdoors in, the entire project evolved. At first, it was decided to completely remodel the kitchen to bring it up-to-date and install new appliances. By removing the wall between the laundry and kitchen, the kitchen space was enlarged, and the laundry was relocated to the bedroom wing where it was more convenient. Next, the master bathroom received a remodeling makeover. The new kitchen and master bathroom remodels were such dramatic improvements it made everything in between look old by comparison, and one thing led to another, so before long the entire 2-story contemporary house was completely remodeled. The most amazing transformation happened to the central living areas of the house. Previously, there had been a living/dining combination at the front and a family room behind separated by a wall with a fireplace on each side. We removed the connecting wall to open up the space, raised and vaulted the roof and designed a custom two-sided fireplace that also supports the ceiling structure. The fireplace was specially designed with lighted cabinets to hold a collection of mother and child figurines from around the world. Now the opened areas flow together and work beautifully for social gatherings; and the space is flooded with light from a wall of windows overlooking the woods and creek.

Attention was then focused on the lower level where a home theater was created from an office space. The windows were removed for darkening, a platform was built to elevate the seating, and state-of-the-art projection equipment was installed for a true theater experience at home. New his-and-hers offices as well as an exercise room were also designed for the lower level.

The homeowners and their guests love the results and think the cure was worth the treatment!

Family and friends love to gather in the theater to catch the latest film.

pletely up to date. Featuring stunning maple cabinetry from Jay Rambo Co., in a warm English Walnut finish, top-of-the-line appliances by Asko, Sub-Zero and Wolf, and gorgeous countertops in two different granites—Compass Black with a leather finish on the perimeter, and Golden Lumière on the island—this kitchen is a delight for gourmet cooking, family meals and entertaining.

Chef Carvel Grant Gould of Canoe Restaurant gave a cooking demonstration on the Wolf induction cooktop. Much appreciation, as always, to all the Junior League volunteers, and many thanks to homeowners Mark and Donna Mason for their participation in the tour!

Mellow wood tones, staggered heights, decorative fillers and corner cabinets with seeded glass contribute to the welcoming ambiance of the Mason's new kitchen.

TWO NEW EMPLOYEES

She's back! After several years absence during which she concentrated on raising her young children and running her own business, Angela Hutton has returned to CSI. Now working with Steven Gamper as his design partner, Angela says that there have been a lot of changes since she was here last. "When I worked here before, we did all of our drafting and pricing by hand, now there is a computer program for everything!" she says.

Angela Hutton

Angela, and her husband, Roger, who is part of our remodeling team, live in Hall County with their two daughters, Deven and Regan.

CSI is also very happy to welcome Clay Polston as the newest member of our sales staff. Clay was formerly with Custom Kitchens and Appliances in Woodstock, which recently closed.

Originally from Arkansas, Clay has lived in Georgia for many years and has a great affinity and appreciation for the construction industry, and has many years of experience designing home plans and selling appliances and cabinetry. He and his wife, Ann, reside in Cherokee County and have one son, Mark, who is about to graduate from college.
